

LEVEL SEVEN

1. The foolish thieves had hidden the jewellery in the church organ.
2. It was a mystery that the passing stranger did not hear the dying scream of the widow.
3. The wealthy traveller wore an expensive shirt and trousers.
4. The thoughtful shepherd left his flock grazing on the fertile acre of grass.
5. When the thief escaped, the majority of people began to search the mountainous places for him.
6. The man asked the crowd to express their appreciation for the splendid entertainment and refreshments provided during the evening.
7. It is indeed an excellent example of courage the passenger showed throughout the frightening voyage.
8. The people consider the pioneer a hero because he made the discovery of the foreign continent.
9. The minister sat beneath the platform in the darkness saying a prayer.
10. The collection of embroidery on the shelves adds variety to the exhibition in the shop window.
11. The tenth chapter in the murder story is the worst, as it tells when the shady deed is carried out.
12. The doctor suggested that in my condition after such a serious operation, complete rest was necessary.
13. The unhappy fisherman said it was impossible to tie up to the wharf at low tide.

14. The gentleman was delighted with the rare violet blossom.
15. The behaviour of that particular prisoner has shown improvement.
16. Irrigation gradually helped to achieve successful development of agriculture.
17. After the miner had borrowed a large quantity of equipment he occupied himself with his invention.
18. The workers had to obtain permission to shift the metal statue of the knight from the railway station.
19. When the freighter was wrecked by the iceberg, the folk aboard took a raft and rowed ashore.
20. The poet did not succeed in finding a title for the verse of poetry which he had written.
21. When the curtain fell at the end of the concert, the mass of people clapped for the choir to sing the chorus again.
22. When a flame from a cracker at the fireworks display caught the shop alight, the butcher thought it was his duty to sound the alarm.
23. He was most grateful for the inexpensive gift, and sang another verse to show his appreciation.
24. The inventor found that when the air does not contain enough oxygen it is difficult to breathe.
25. Although the ankle was bound with the bandage the sprain did still ache.
26. When mumps swept through the primary school it caused the absence of many teachers, including the principal.
27. During the strike all the mistress had to offer her guest was a tough crust from a stale loaf of bread.
28. The traffic officer on one occasion said his occupation was not dull, but a splendid one in which to earn a living.

29. Although the extremely intelligent student had a vacant look on his face, he understood the problem.
30. With camera in hand, I crept up to the lame pigeon to take a photograph.
31. The might military leader cast his eye over his division and gave the command in a voice like thunder.
32. I was foolish to continue with the argument over the damage done to the boundary fence of the diamond mine.
33. Much to the amusement of the people in our household, I took the chance to become acquainted with a brass instrument.
34. The college boy collected the vinegar, bacon, sour lemons, and two loaves of bread from the distant shop.
35. When the nervous lady got a fright, she shone the flashlight on the window, but only saw a moth.
36. Owing to the increase in production from the oyster bed, many ships left the wharves and headed towards the zone.
37. The woman passed the bundle of fancy nylon pyjamas across the counter.
38. The jealous hawk fought the eagle for its share of the lung and brain of the dead sheep.
39. After the election the political party organized a labour force to improve the appearance of the old recreation grounds.
40. The graceful lady decided to forgive the careless painter who splashed her knitting with dye.
41. Fried trout with lime juice is not only delicious to eat, but also easier to digest.
42. The rescue party searched all night in the dense jungle with a lantern, hoping to find the important booklet that had disappeared.

43. Because of his lack of memory, the justice of the peace had the habit of making a grave mistake each time he spoke to the association.
44. The dwarf could not afford a coach to deliver the silk jacket to the fairy queen.
45. It was a nuisance to have to put exactly a teaspoon of starch in the rinsing water every time I starched my linen uniform.
46. The cook had to stir the handful of onion in a saucepan before she added it to the tender sausage meat.
47. The bullet seldom hit the cardboard target near the wheelbarrow.
48. The comical speaker and his partner amused the members of the council, who laughed aloud.
49. The cloak which covered the colt was made entirely of flax.
50. The young man was not ashamed to receive advice from his father, who had a sound knowledge of golf.
51. The odd looking man whispered to his friend that he was not satisfied with the invention.
52. The independent factory manufactured a scarce spice, this being its main product.
53. Because the brake on the cheap car would not work, after we had been through the ford, the only way to get to our destination was to harness a horse.
54. I had to measure the width of the mirror frame which I was to varnish.
55. The religious man prayed that the hail would not destroy the barley.
56. The men were putting gravel on the highway opposite the telephone exchange.

57. Whatever friendships will the wicked man spoil next?
58. We didn't dare to bathe in the icy water, but filled the kettle to boil for tea.
59. The man knelt on a cushion, smoking in silence as he watched the playful kitten.
60. The thrifty man realised that there was great commercial value in his furnishing design.